Title IX: Bureaucratic and Judicial Transformation

November 13, 2019, 1:00 - 4:15 p.m.
Norfolk Waterside Marriott, Norfolk, Virginia

Practical knowledge and conceptual insight for:
• College and university administrators
• Attorneys (CLE credit available)
• Professors
• Graduate and law students

Three-hour session for only $69.00

This stand-alone preconference for is available in conjunction with the Education Law Association’s (ELA) 65th Annual Conference, November 13-16. The session will review the most important controversies, competing points of contention, and practical considerations and risks in higher education under Title IX on issues such as equity in athletics, sexual harassment, sexual assault, and applicability to transgendered individuals. In doing so, the presenters will provide a provocative framework for understanding the historical development of the law in this area that they set forth in their book, Title IX: The Transformation of Sex Discrimination in Education, as well as speculation about the law’s future development.

Presenters:

William Thro, J.D.:
General Counsel, University of Kentucky
Former Solicitor General, Commonwealth of Virginia
Past President, Education Law Association
Past Board Member, National Association of College & University Attorneys

Elizabeth Kaufer Busch, Ph.D.:
Laura and Pete Walker Professor in American Studies,
Co-Director of the Center for American Studies,
Director of American Studies
Christopher Newport University

The ELA Annual Conference is a uniquely diverse and welcoming gathering of hundreds of attorneys, professors, education leaders and administrators, teachers, graduate and law students, consultants, reporters, and other stakeholders from the worlds of PreK-12 and higher education; public, private, and charter institutions; colleges of education and law schools; plaintiff- and defense-side; and labor and management. In addition to nationally prominent keynote speakers and four preconferences, the conference offers over 50 breakout sessions, as well as roundtable discussions and poster sessions.
